Looking Ahead to the Conference of County Bar Leaders: “Where Bar Leaders Gather and Learn”

By Alfred Jones Jr., CCBL President

As Bar leaders, we all look forward to the Conference of County Bar Leaders to give us a chance to get ourselves and our boards out to a conference focused specifically on the running of an efficient and financially responsible bar association. As a result, the conference becomes the forum for bar execs and bar leaders to exchange ideas, address regional and statewide issues and stimulate the improvement of the legal professional in general. This year promises to provide that engaging environment through a combination of presentations including the ones we wait for every year and brand new topics involving the timely issues for 2007, like Ellen Freedman’s debut presentation, “Making the Most of Your Time,” and Paul Brahim’s “Financial Management of Bar Association Assets.”

During the breakout sessions on Friday, there are several new topics that are sure to appeal to many bars. Nancy Paul, executive director of the Montgomery Bar Association, and Kenneth Shear, executive director of the Philadelphia Bar Association, are presenting a session on how to use technology to keep a vibrant and active membership. Additionally, hot on the heels of the extremely successful PBA Diversity Summit, we are pleased to have a distinguished panel presenting “Diversity: Pipeline Programs for Potential Lawyers” answering the question of how do local bar associates set up and assist other entities and institutions, including the PBA, in creating pipeline programs for the identification and nurturing of lawyers? One topic that every bar leader could ask about their bar association is going to be tackled by the PBA Quality of Life/Balance Committee in the session “What is the Quality of Life in Your Bar Association? Tools for Your Assessment and Methods for Improvement.”

As you have grown to expect, representatives of the Disciplinary Board will be present to keep us abreast of the current issues facing local bar associations and the Unauthorized Practice of Law Committee will be presenting the ever-popular “Unauthorized Practice of Law: What Your Association Can Do About It.” The Professional Liability Committee will perform the “Live and Unplugged” version of the Avoidance of Malpractice Insurance Seminar, including an unexpected cameo from an old friend!

As the chair of the CCBL Executive Committee, I look forward to meeting you all for a fun-filled and educational seminar this year! ■

And it explores the techniques and tools readily available to help you meet those challenges head-on and stay on top of your game.

CCBL Registrations

The official registration date has passed, but reservations are still being accepted on a space-available basis. Contact County Bar Services Director Michelle M. Shuker, Esq. at the PBA at (800) 932-0311, Ext. 2218, or michelle.shuker@pabar.org if you wish to attend but have not yet made your reservations.

PABE Fundraising Efforts

The Conference of County Bar Leaders is grateful for the support it has received from the Pennsylvania Association of Bar Executives (PABE) for the annual CCBL seminar. PABE has supported the CCBL in many ways over the years, including volunteering a PABE sponsorship and promoting individual county sponsorships. The PABE recognizes the value of the seminar and last year did a fine job of finding sponsors to help subsidize the conference. Not everyone knows that the CCBL is NOT a conference that generates enough income to cover its expenses.

The PABE has voted to be a gold sponsor of the CCBL once again in 2007. Bar Executives are asked to consider also being a gold sponsor with a $1,000 contribution, or a silver sponsor with a contribution of less than $1,000. Please join the PABE in supporting the CCBL to help continue the quality education and leadership training programs offered.

Individuals and organizations who wish to become sponsors of the CCBL are asked to contact Michelle M. Shuker, Esq. at the PBA at (800) 932-0311, Ext. 2218, or michelle.shuker@pabar.org. All sponsors will be recognized at the event.

2006 in Review: A Year of Change at the PBA

The year 2006 brought many dynamic changes to the Pennsylvania Bar Association.

As you know, it was the year the PBA saw the well-deserved retirement of Arthur J. Birdsall as County Bar Services director. Art was a devoted and accomplished PBA employee for 39 years. Stepping into the County Bar Services director position is attorney Michelle M. Shuker. Many bar leaders have now had the opportunity to meet Michelle as she accompanied PBA President Ken Horoho on the recent "Tour de Pennsylvania," and as she has been traversing the state in her new role for the PBA.

Michelle M. Shuker

Michelle has a varied background. She had a solo practice in Westmoreland County, was a major gift officer for Duquesne University and also more recently for UPMC Cancer Centers/University of Pittsburgh Cancer Institute. She also has worked with for-profit companies involved in placement of contract lawyers.

She has been very involved in bar association work as a member of the Westmoreland Bar Association.

Other new names you're likely to encounter at the PBA are those of Communications Manager Jeff Gingerich and Meetings Director Wendy A. Loran.

Jeff joined the PBA as communications manager in late May. He brings 25 years of experience in the communications field, including approximately 10 years in broadcast journalism. His work has received local, state and national awards. Jeff edits the association's electronic newsletter, PBA E-News, develops news releases, and manages a host of public relations projects.

Wendy joined the PBA as director of meetings in May. She brings over 25 years of experience in meeting planning, association management and the hotel/hospitality industry. She has worked for several other regional/state associations and national hotel chains. Wendy is a current member and past board member of the Pennsylvania Society of Association Executives.

Wendy A. Loran

Another exciting change at the PBA is our redesigned and updated Web site at www.pabar.org. There's a fresh, new look and new features.

First is a revamped home page. The emphasis is on action and interactivity, from the art at the top of the page to the latest PBA news scrolling at the bottom. Gone is the over-long list of 21 subject categories running down the left side of the page, replaced by fewer, clearly labeled and logically arrayed "buttons." While the emphasis in the redesign is on reorganization of content and a new, less cluttered look, the site also incorporates new media and new ways to view PBA news and information as well one-click access to other areas of the Internet for general news, legal news and Web-wide searches.

New features include:

- Buttons leading instantly to:
 - Clearly defined areas for County Bar Services,
 - "Member Login," to reach the members-only area of the site,
 - Access to the Pennsylvania Bar Institute Web site,
 - PBA InCite®, the free, members-only legal research benefit,
 - and Search fields for the PBA site or Google™.
- Scrolling "PBA News," including live links to information about PBA events, upcoming meetings and legislative initiatives (to pause and read the news, just move the cursor over the text).

- New media links to photos, videos and podcasts from PBA events.
- An "Events Calendar" link.
- A direct link to "Global News" via the LexisNexis News Web site, www.lexisnexis.com/news.
- Of particular interest to solo and small firms, a direct link to "Legal News" on the lexisONE® Web site. ■

Celebrate Law Day in Your County: Theme for 2007 is “Liberty Means Responsibility”

Teaching kids about their legal rights and responsibilities is what this year’s Law Day program is all about. The theme for Pennsylvania’s eighth annual celebration is “Liberty Means Responsibility.” Children of all ages will have the opportunity to explore the ways in which they can have an impact on our world.

Because many local bar associations already have plans underway for their annual Law Day festivities, the PBA Law Day program and materials are specifically designed to enhance and supplement those existing efforts.

Lawyers and judges are again being encouraged to visit schools and use the PBA’s new, free law-related lesson plan guide during classroom visits. Because many local bar associations already have plans underway for their annual Law Day festivities, the PBA Law Day program and materials are specifically designed to enhance and supplement those existing efforts. Similar to last year, interested local bar associations can request free lesson plan guides to distribute to members and schools. Information regarding all of the Law Day plans will be mailed to local bar associations shortly.

Law Day is a great vehicle for county bar associations to reach out to their membership, not only by including them in Law Day activities, but also by helping them to reach out into the community. For bar associations that would like to participate, but do not have a staff, the PBA can provide Law Day assistance.

The PBA regularly receives inquiries as to why the it does not use the American Bar Association Law Day theme. In answer, several years ago, the PBA Law-Related Education Committee decided to adopt Law Day themes that are unique to Pennsylvania. The committee did consider using the ABA’s themes when it initiated the statewide Law Day program, but found them to be too focused on one aspect of the law. Many Pennsylvania schools expressed interest in having broader themes to which their students could better relate. In addition, the PBA selects a new theme in the spring of the preceding year so that it can be used throughout the school year — from Celebrate the Constitution through Law Day. The ABA does not release its theme until late summer or early fall.

Update on PBA Avoidance of Legal Malpractice Seminars

The fall schedule of Avoidance of Legal Malpractice Seminars has come to a close with the successful presenting of 38 seminars in the western portion of the commonwealth. This year’s topic was chosen by the PBA Professional Liability Committee in response to the new Rule of Professional Conduct 1.4c, effective July 1, 2006. The new Rule does not require an attorney to carry malpractice insurance, but it does require the attorney to provide notice to the client in the event the attorney does not carry the minimum required levels of $100,000 per occurrence and $300,000 in the aggregate.

In response to the new Rule, many attorneys are entering the malpractice insurance world for the first time. Additionally, due to the softer insurance market of 2006 and the multitude of carriers writing Lawyers Liability Policies (LPL) in the commonwealth, there are many attorneys and law firms comparing rate quotes and reviewing their current insurance coverage.

With those two circumstances in mind, the seminar reviews the “ins and outs” of the LPL policy. The topic is taught with the creative use of a vignette video performed by talented lawyers on the Professional Liability Committee, with a cameo from former PBA County Bar Services Director Art Birdsall and several members of the PBA staff. The vignette sets the stage for an academic review of liability insurance generally and coverage and exclusions for LPL specifically.

All seminars are CD-ROM presentations. Conference members who attend will receive up to a 5 percent discount on their PBA-endorsed malpractice insurance, plus 1.5 hours of CLE credit.

Farewell to a Friend

*By Elizabeth C. Price,
Executive Director,
Delaware County Bar Association*

The ballroom in the Harrisburg Sheraton was filled to capacity for the Arthur J. Birdsall Retirement Dinner. Seated at a large table surrounded by his family, Art greeted each person that came to honor him and to bid a fond farewell.

Art has been a friend, a mentor and a confidant to many during his 39 years with the Pennsylvania Bar Association. He served with 41 PBA presidents, 20 chairs of the Conference of County Bar Leaders, four PBA executive directors, one PBA executive secretary, and many PBA Committee and Section chairs. Art's employment with the PBA included positions as messenger, mailroom clerk, data processing supervisor, central service director, director of membership and central services, director of membership benefits, and director of County Bar Services. He enhanced each position, provided quiet leadership, and contributed tremendous effort along the way.

The president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, Kenneth J. Horoho Jr., welcomed those present to "celebrate the career of a devoted and accomplished employee, and to revel in the association's history."

Ken kept all present entertained throughout the program by introducing special guest speakers with a "sprinkle" of "Art - A - Facts."

Guest speakers included Pennsylvania Bar Foundation President Karen Balaban, PBA Professional Liability Committee Chair Jim Schadel, PBA past Presidents Bill Carlucci and Jim Mundy; CCBL President Al Jones, Pennsylvania Bar Institute president Stephanie Latimore, PBA Executive Director Barry Simpson, Past PBA Executive Director Ted Stellwag and USI Colburn representative Shelly Lawson. Horoho introduced Art's wife, Patty, and their three children, Jessica, Jacob, and Isaac. He noted — with a dozen roses — that very few duties can be discharged without having a strong and supportive "better half."

It was then time to introduce the special guest, the "man for all seasons," "Mr. PBA," Arthur J. Birdsall.

Art sincerely thanked those with whom he had worked throughout the years. He happily announced the "coming event" of his first grandchild while paying tribute to his wife, Patty, their children, and fondly remembering his mother.

Tears in the eyes of many accompanied Art's farewell address.

To Art, we wish the very best in the next chapter of his life ... the best is yet to come. ■
