PBA to Partner With Local Bars on 2006 Identity Theft Public Education Campaign

The PBA is partnering with local bar associations on an important public education campaign about identity theft.

The two-week campaign, "Your Good Name. Protect It. Restore It.," begins Oct. 24. It is modeled after successful previous statewide education initiatives on wills, real estate, child support, elder law and consumer credit. The campaign is being waged under the direction of the PBA Client and Community Relations Committee and is funded by a grant from the Pennsylvania Bar Insurance Fund and Trust.

Identity theft is the nation's fastest growing crime. The campaign reminds consumers about simple precautions they should take to prevent identity theft and provides steps they should take if they become victims.

"During the past year, 9.9 million Americans became victims of identity theft, a crime that can ruin credit and result in many hours of frustration for consumers attempting to regain their good standing with banks and other creditors," said PBA Client and Community Relations Committee Chair Gerri V. Paulisick of Butler.

The campaign kicks off prior to the holiday shopping season to highlight good habits that shoppers should practice when they are in stores and when they are disclosing financial information that identity thieves crave.

A news conference will be held at a Harrisburg-area shopping mall to announce the campaign. Participating local bar associations are encouraged to hold identity theft prevention events during the two-week campaign period.

Through a partnership with the Pennsylvania Newspaper Association, advertisements will be placed in newspapers throughout the state, and a toll-free hotline will be available for citizens to request a free identity theft prevention brochure.

As of press time, 31 bar associations have committed to be part of the campaign. These include associations in the counties of Adams, Beaver, Berks, Blair, Bucks, Butler, Cambria, Crawford, Cumberland, Dauphin, Erie, Franklin, Fulton, Jefferson, Lancaster, Lawrence, Lebanon, Lehigh, Luzerne, Lycoming, Mercer, Monroe, Montgomery, Northampton, Northumberland, Philadelphia, Schuylkill, Washington, Wayne, Westmoreland and York. ■

Michelle Shuker New PBA Director of County Bar Services

The PBA has hired attorney Michelle M. Shuker as director of County Bar Services. Michelle takes the position formerly held by Art Birdsall.

Many bar leaders had the opportunity to meet Michelle as she accompanied PBA President Ken Horoho on the recent "Tour de Pennsylvania."

Michelle has a varied background. She had a solo practice in Westmoreland

County, was a major gift officer for Duquesne University and also more recently for UPMC Cancer Centers/University of Pittsburgh Cancer Institute. These positions required much travel around the nation, so Michelle is ready for the rigors of travel that the County Bar Services position requires. She also has worked with for-profit companies involved in placement of contract lawyers.

Michelle came to the PBA highly recommended by two board members, as well as several other prominent PBA members and bar executives, her former employer and the dean of Duquesne Law School.

She has been very involved in bar association work as a member of the Westmoreland Bar Association. ■

Allegheny

Disaster Legal Assistance Manual for Volunteer Attorneys

The Allegheny County Bar Association has completed a Disaster Legal Assistance Manual for Volunteer Attorneys.

After Hurricane Ivan hit Southwestern Pennsylvania in September 2004, Robert Racunas, then president-elect of the ACBA, initiated the idea of the association developing a plan in the event of another disaster.

Almost exactly one year later, Hurricane Katrina struck Louisiana, and many evacuees were expected to arrive in Allegheny County. The ACBA was asked to establish a volunteer pro bono legal assistance plan to assist the evacuees. The culmination of these events led to the development of a Disaster Plan Subcommittee of the Public Service Committee, charged with creating the ACBA's Disaster Legal Assistance Manual for Volunteer Attorneys.

The subcommittee reviewed other bar association disaster manuals and in particular, the Louisiana State Bar Association's Emergency Disaster Training Manual and the Texas State Bar and Houston Bar Associations' resource materials, to be used as prototypes.

This summer, Racunas announced the completion of the ACBA's Disaster Manual. The association is now prepared to launch an emergency pro bono legal assistance program in the event of a disaster.

The manual sets forth the details of the volunteer program and includes critical emergency and legal assistance information. Included is an overview of FEMA and non-FEMA legal assistance, a description of the process of providing legal assistance to disaster victims, answers to frequently asked questions on issues such as housing, property, insurance, unemployment compensation and other relevant issues. There is an extensive referral sources section, as well as a comprehensive appendix with forms, statutes, important telephone numbers and legal services contact numbers.

Katrina taught us that a bar association may incur as much damage as others during a disaster. If the ACBA incurs such damage, the Pennsylvania Bar Association, through its Pro Bono coordinator, David Trevaskis, has agreed to provide back-up assistance, which is vital to a successful plan.

The manual is available online at both the ACBA and ACBF Web sites: www.acba.org or www.acbf.org.

Armstrong

Memorial Service

The Armstrong County Bar Association held a memorial service for Judge Roy A. House Jr. on June 9.

Bucks

District Court Mediation Program

The Bucks County Bar Association has launched a new free District Court Mediation Program.

Katrina Relief Effort

Members of the BCBA will be going back to Waveland, Miss., Oct. 7 – 14 to help clean and rebuild the courthouse that was ruined in Hurricane Katrina last year.

Carbon

Scholarship Awarded

The CCBA presented its Carbon County Bar Association Scholarship to Shaina Rubino for a student with a strong work ethic, demonstrated honesty and conscientiousness, and who is a credit to the school and community.

Retirement Dinner

The Carbon County Bar Association held a retirement dinner for Judge Richard W. Webb, retired president judge of the County Court of Common Pleas.

Chester

Second Annual Judges Softball Game

On August 17, the Chester County Bar Association challenged its federal judges for the Second Annual Federal vs. State Judges Softball Game. The event took place at Fairmount Park in Philadelphia last year and at West Chester University this year. Approximately 20 judges turned out and the teams were filled in with attorneys. The president of the Chester County Bar Association, Bruce Laverty, is also a PIAA umpire and called the game. The game was followed by a cook-out at the field and all participants received a team baseball shirt. Next year's game is planned to take place in Camden, N.J.

Clearfield

Lunch-and-Learn

The Clearfield County Bar Association held a "lunch-and-learn" on the county's Supervised Access, Visitation and Exchange Program (SAVE).

Dauphin

Volleyball League

The DCBA Young Lawyers Section Volleyball League ended the 2006 season with an annual tournament and picnic. Over 400 participants on 27 teams competed weekly over a period of three months in this popular and collegial program, which fosters camaraderie among and within the law firms in the greater Harrisburg area.

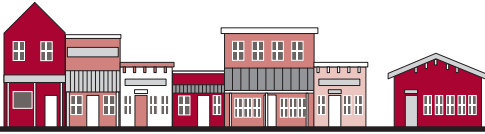

Baseball Ticket Distribution

Every year, the Dauphin County Bar Association partners with the Harrisburg Senators minor league baseball team to encourage season ticket holders to donate their unused and rain-out tickets for redistribution. So far this year, the bar association has collected the unused tickets and distributed them to over 1,000 underprivileged children, senior citizens and veterans who might otherwise not have an opportunity to attend a baseball game at Harrisburg's City Island Stadium.

Project KidCare

annual Kipona Festival on September 3. The program, sponsored by the Dauphin County Bar Foundation, provides ID cards that can be vital in helping parents and police locate missing children.

Delaware

Mock Trial Tournament

The Delaware County Bar Association's Mock Trial Tournament saw a record number of teams (13) signed up for participation this year. The problem this year was a homicide case, "Commonwealth of Pennsylvania vs. Teaberry Olson," and with much of the commonwealth's evidence circumstantial, creativity was required on the part of both sides. Juries for the proceedings were made up of DCBA member attorneys, with County Common Pleas Court judges making the rulings. Judges and jurors also provided performance feedback for the students who participated in the month-long competition.

Fayette

Bar Association Banquet

The Fayette County Bar Association held its 113th Annual Bar Association Banquet on June 3.

Franklin

Pro Se Divorce Clinic

Bolstered by a grant from the Pennsylvania IOLTA Board, the Franklin County Bar Association launched a pro bono program with a two-fold purpose — helping more low-income clients in domestic relations cases and enabling attorneys without a family law background to assist those clients.

The FCBA's new pro se divorce clinic kicked off in September with a one-credit CLE seminar for attorneys to give them the training they need to volunteer for the clinic. Only low-income clients filing for simple, no-asset divorces will be eligible for the clinic. Clients will come through the county's three legal aid agencies, which will refer people who meet income guidelines but are not eligible for their services because of a conflict or other issue.

Volunteer attorneys will provide guidance to clients in completing the necessary forms for filing with the court. Initially the clinic will meet bimonthly, for a few hours in an afternoon or evening, at the FCBA office.

Jefferson

Scholarship Established

The Jefferson County Bar Association has established the Hon. Edwin L. Snyder Legal Scholarship to benefit county law students. This is the fifth consecutive year that the association has aided students in their second or third year of law school.

Lackawanna

People's Law School

The Lackawanna Bar Association held its 14th annual People's Law school in July and August. Topics in this session included the federal courts, domestic violence, and estate planning and elder law.

Lower Luzerne

Annual Meeting

The Lower Luzerne County Bar Association held its annual meeting on June 15.

Lycoming

Electronic Newsletter and Web Site

The Lycoming Law Association launched its new electronic newsletter. In addition, the association has also unveiled a new home page on their Web site. The site was recently evaluated by a nationally known legal Web site developer (courtesy of the American Bar Association) who recommended some changes to the appearance and functionality of the site. When completed, the revised site is expected to be cleaner and easier to navigate.

"Lawctoberfest"

The Lycoming Law Association's Young Lawyers Division will hold its First Annual "Lawctoberfest" on October 7 at the Bullfrog Brewery. Proceeds will benefit the Lycoming Law Association Foundation.

Monroe

Summer Activities

The Monroe County Bar Association celebrated the summer season with several activities. A visit to Camelbeach, sponsored by the Young Lawyers Division, was held on July 18.

On July, 28, the MCBA Annual Summer Outing was held at Great Bear Golf and Country Club. The Leges Cup Tournament was held in the morning, followed by dinner and dancing in the evening.

The YLD sponsored a trip to Lackawanna Stadium to see the Red Barons play the Pawtucket Red Sox on August, 11. It was "pink ribbon night" at the stadium to honor breast cancer survivors, and fireworks were set off at the end of the game.

The association hosted its Ninth Annual Bench/Bar Conference on Sept. 29 at Fernwood Resort and Conference Center in Bushkill. At the luncheon, President Judge Ronald E. Vican was acknowledged for his 25 years of service on the bench in the county.

Montgomery

Immigration Symposium

The United States' immigration policy, and its potential reform, is an important and complex issue. Given the confusion surrounding the issues, and in an effort to educate and inform people in the community, the Montgomery Bar Association teamed up with the Welcoming Center for New Pennsylvanians to present a free community symposium entitled Immigration: The Real Issues Behind the Headlines at the 550-seat Gwynedd-Mercy Academy High School Auditorium on Sept. 28.

The list of featured guests scheduled to present read like a who's who on U.S. immigration reform: Frank Sharry, executive director of the National Immigration Forum in Washington, D.C., for example, has appeared in national newspapers and on major news television programs. Kelly Hunt manages immigration policy for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Fernando Chang-Muy directs the Philadelphia site of the Funders' Collaborative for Strong Latino Communities and is a professor at the University of Pennsylvania's School of Law and Penn's Graduate School of Social Policy and Practice Work. Imja Choi is the founder and executive director of Korean American Senior Services of Pennsylvania. Anne O'Callaghan is the executive director of the Welcoming Center for New Pennsylvanians and participates in a number of other organizations such as the Alliance for the Mentally Ill, the Visiting Nurses Association of Greater Philadelphia, and the Southwest Community Enrichment Center. The all-star panel of speakers for this event was assembled by the MBA Community Outreach Committee and its partners at the Welcoming Center.

To encourage attendance for this event, the bar association reached out to several area professional associations and chambers of commerce for support. Three chambers of commerce and several professional organizations with combined memberships of over 7,000 prospective attendees shared in marketing the symposium. They did so by publishing articles and ads in their member newsletters, and sending e-mail announcements and personalized invitation letters to members. In exchange for promotional support, the Montgomery Bar Association had included partners' logos and provided promotional consideration in event announcements and press releases.

The symposium set out to address the topic of immigration reform — free of polarizing rhetoric. The panel for the symposium included only those willing to address, in a non-partisan voice, "how immigration and its potential reform will impact each of us personally as well as our schools, churches, businesses and neighborhoods." Speakers agreed to present an unbiased educational explanation of facts to community members. Elected officials and political candidates were invited to attend; however they were not eligible to present and were urged not to use the symposium as a forum for political gain.

For those unable to attend, the MBA arranged for the event to be filmed and aired locally via public access television. Edited footage will soon be made available to area cable provider Comcast, who in-turn will make the program available via their video on-demand service. The MBA is also exploring alternative delivery vehicles such as montgomerybar.org and podcasts to extend the reach and accessibility of the symposium.

Before, during and after the event — media alerts and announcements issued by the MBA helped to generate awareness of the issue and of "lawyers doing good."

Schuylkill

Law School Scholarships

For the 29th year, the Schuylkill County Bar Association is receiving applications for aid for county students attending law school. Last year, awards were made to 16 students.

Wilkes-Barre/Luzerne

Law Day Dinner

During the Law Day dinner of the Wilkes-Barre Law and Library Association/Luzerne County Bar Association, attorney Michael I. Butera received a Congressional resolution from Pa. Rep. Paul J. Kanjorski in recognition of Butera's work as president of the association, including the launch of the organization's charitable foundation, greatly increased attendance at the bench-bar conference, involvement in the Keystone Games and planning for a Supreme Court admission ceremony. Kanjorski had held a special tour of the U.S. Capitol and a luncheon for the county's participating attorneys in conjunction with the Washington ceremony.

YLD Soup Kitchen Volunteers

Members of the Young Lawyers Division of the Wilkes-Barre Law and Library Association/Luzerne County Bar Association volunteered at the St. Vincent DePaul Soup Kitchen in Wilkes-Barre.

York

Lawyer Referral Service Revamped

The York County Bar Association has launched "Attorney Connection" a revamped Lawyer Referral Service for the county. Press releases to area media were part of an effort to broaden the market for the service, especially among middle-income persons. As an added service to lawyers who accept referrals, the bar association will now collect the (slightly increased) referral fee from callers, relieving the attorneys of that effort and related expense. As part of the reworked "Attorney Connection," the structure of what percentage of the total client fee collected by the attorney and returned to the bar association was also changed. ■

Lawforkids.org: Young Lawyers Helping Guide Their Communities' Young People

There's a new effort underway to provide an opportunity for young lawyers to get involved in state and local bar association activities: the Pennsylvania Bar Association Young Lawyers Division's www.Lawforkids.org Web site. Lawforkids.org is a public service project being implemented in the 2006-07 bar year.

This program adopts an Arizona-based Web site that helps both children and educators learn about the law. The interactive research and guidance Web site provides students with information about the laws that affect them. It also provides students with the opportunity to play games, read stories and share experiences, all while learning about the laws of our commonwealth.

Students can quickly and easily learn about legal topics of interest to them. In addition to learning about laws they care about, students are given information about things that they need to know about. The dangers of drugs, alcohol and violence (among others) are discussed in detail as are the consequences students face if they get involved in any of these things.

Students are encouraged to submit questions about the law, which are reviewed and answered by practicing attorneys. Students are also encouraged to share their experiences to help and guide their peers.

The success of the project is contingent upon the involvement of the young lawyers throughout our commonwealth who are dedicated to our children's success. It's an especially good opportunity for young lawyers who want to be involved in bar activities, but who may practice in counties that do not have established or active Young Lawyers Divisions.

Contact Daniel McKenna, PBA Young Lawyers Division At-Large Zone chair and chair of the Lawforkids.org project, at mckennad@ballardspahr.com for more information. ■
